Missouri Day Festival Brings Families Out For Fall Fun

Staff report

Families were out and about in Trenton this past weekend as the Missouri Day Festival was in full swing.

The annual event, which ran Friday and Saturday Oct. 16 and 17 with some related events taking place Oct. 18, featured shopping with area vendors, family activities, a marching band competition, petting zoo, museum exhibits, food vendors, a children's coloring contest and more. The Trenton Chamber of Commerce organizes the festival each year and this year's theme was "Stars, Stripes and Show-Me Pride."

Trenton chamber Executive Director Kayla Graham said the festival had something for everyone, including those with different needs.

Advocates Say Women Need To Know They Have Support

October is Domestic Violence Awareness Month

By Jeff Fox
Contributor

One woman in three is affected by domestic violence.

This is more openly talked about than it used to be, but, Hope House CEO MaryAnne Metheny says, it still remains obscured among our coworkers, neighbors and friends.

"It is very prominent in our society," she says.

The key is that women need to know they have trusted people around them.

"Sometimes they just need a safe person to talk to," she says, adding that that means listening with sympathy and without judgment.

She adds, "Isolation is a huge thing that happens in abusive relationships."

Help is available. In an emergency, call or text 9-1-1. Hope House can be reached at hopehouse.net and 816-461-HOPE (4673).

Hope House has provided domestic violence sheltering and related services in Eastern Jackson County for decades. It's among many organizations nationwide observing Domestic Violence Awareness Month.

"What we're really trying to focus on is awareness but also action," Metheny said.

The National Domestic Violence Hotline in Austin, Texas, suggests four things people can do: Educate yourself and others. Listen without judgment. Encourage professional support. Raise awareness, and advocate for change.

"Make it understandable. Make it real for people," Metheny says.

Hope House and others provide services and try to raise awareness, but Metheny stresses that community support is crucial.

"We are not going to solve domestic violence on our own," she says.

affected if they are using water from Trenton.

This temporary change will be in place for three to six weeks.

In an effort to educate water customers, the city has release a list of commonly asked questions about free chlorine conversion and their purpose. They are as follows.

• What are the possible noticeable effects?

"There are no associated health risks to the process. During these efforts to improve water quality, there will be times of lower water pressure, possible odor, taste, discoloration, and small particles in the water," reads the city release. "City of Trenton and/or your water service will attempt to flush the particles, color, and taste and odors from the mains with directional flushing, however there is a possibility that some of the color, odor and tastes will get into your service line."

• Is my water safe to drink?

"Yes, the City of Trenton Water Department is dedicated to making sure the water is safe to drink and will monitor disinfectant levels continually during the conversion. If you experience odor or taste in your water, it does not mean it is unsafe to drink. Odors are caused by the free chlorine disinfectant cleansing the system. Nuisance issues will go away as the work is completed," reads the released statement.

• Why is this conversion necessary?

"The City of Trenton and its customer departments are tasked with ensuring that the water in all points of their systems is acceptable to their customers. Over time, minerals and metals, which are naturally present in the water source, can increase and attach to pipe walls, and release when there are changes in pressure, resulting in discoloration and affecting taste," reads the release. "Other processes such as nitrification and the growth of biofilm can also occur in the water distribution system. This biofilm can cause reduction in the effectiveness of residual disinfectants over time. This free chlorine conversion will help cleanse the pipe walls, reduce the occurrence of nitrification and biofilm, and ensure that we provide quality water for our customers."

For more information, residents and water customers can contact the Trenton Water Treatment Plant at (660) 359-3211.

The investment will allow the community colleges to continue building their capacity to prepare students for high-demand careers while responding to the evolving workforce needs of employers throughout the region.

NCMC President Jamie Hooyman said, "North Central Missouri College is proud to collaborate with our fellow Missouri community colleges. We are excited to do our part in helping more students prepare for successful careers in the workforce."

Missouri's community colleges play an essential role in connecting education with workforce development. Through partnerships with employers and industry leaders, the colleges can give students opportunities to earn credentials, build career-ready skills, and enter fields that need trained workers.

This award is part of approximately $65 million in workforce grants awarded nationwide by the U.S. Department of Labor. The funding represents the sixth round of the Strengthening Community Colleges Training Grants Program.

The program is designed to strengthen the ability of community colleges to address employers' skill-development needs while helping students earn credentials that lead to quality jobs in high-demand industries.

Missouri's community colleges play an important role in supporting workforce and economic development across the state. By providing accessible education and industry-aligned training, community colleges strengthen talent pipelines for Missouri employers while helping students gain the skills and credentials needed to pursue in-demand, family-sustaining careers.

The Missouri Community College Association celebrates investments that strengthen the state's community colleges, expand opportunities for students and help Missouri businesses find the skilled workers they need.

The multi-day festival this past weekend in Trenton brought hundreds out for family fun that include vendor booths, food, a coloring contest, parade, marching band competition and more.

Coloring contest results

In the children's coloring contest, winners received a certificate and gift card.

"We appreciate all the students within Grundy County that participated and Sonic Drive-In for their gracious support of this year's contest," said Jeanie Griffin, who helped organize the contest.

The coloring contest was divided into different grade brackets, ranging from preschool to fourth grade with awards given out for first, second and third place.

Winners were:

- Preschool - Aleena Cox, first place; Hallie Ledford, second place; and Aspyn McGowan, third place.
- Kindergarten - Brayden Achter, first place; Andi Jones, second place; and Kolter Eller, third place.
- First grade - Edie Gott, first place; Chaylnn Tucker, second place; Reid Ormsby, third place.
- Second grade - Eiszlee, first place; Katherine Shiftlett, second place; and Shayler Davis, third place.
- Third grade - Adrienne Thompson, first place; Layla McCauslin, second place; and Jesse Todd, third place.
- Fourth grade - Kenady Ledford, first place; Zoe Vandevender, second place; and Janielle Sallee, third place.

Band competition

In the marching band competition, dozens of bands from schools across Missouri and Kansas participated in divisions based on size. Bands competed in a variety of categories that included parade, indoor auxiliary, indoor drumline and field show. Bands were evaluated on music, marching and maneuvering, general effect and field auxiliary.

After judges' scores were tabulated, awards were presented in C.F. Russell Stadium. Trophies were awarded to the top three of each class in their respective events along with a best-in-class field auxiliary award. The Hannaford sweepstakes trophy was awarded to the band with the highest cumulative score from all events throughout the day.

LAUREL ANN BERRY

May 16, 1935 - Oct 20, 2026

Laurel Ann (Ratliff) Berry, 91, of Galt, Missouri, passed away October 20, 2026, in Kansas City, Missouri. Born on May 16, 1935, to Clarence and Rosa Ratliff, Laurel grew up in the Forks of the River area. On October 22, 1961, Laurel married Melvin Berry, and together they shared 58 years on their farm north of Galt.

For Laurel, the outdoors was her happiest place. She loved tending her flowers and garden, mowing, and caring for livestock, especially her beloved sheep. She fully embodied the role of a farm wife, nurturing both her family, her neighbors and community, and the animals entrusted to her. Laurel was also a gifted seamstress, creating clothing for her daughters when they were young and crafting many beautiful quilts over the years.

Music was another of Laurel's talents. She played both piano and organ, sang with a lovely soprano voice, and spent many joyful years performing with the Sweet Adelines. She shared her talents generously, baking breads and treats to sell at the Trenton Farmer's Market and teaching piano lessons.

Laurel was an active member of Fairview Methodist Church and later attended Galt Christian Church. She also served her community as a board member of the Grundy County Learning Center.

She is survived by her daughters: Kristin (Tom) Harris of Kansas City; Anita (Marc) Siler of Kansas City; and Teresa (Clint) Smith of Branson. She leaves behind six grandchildren Emily and Kyle Siler; Megan and Andrew Harris; and Blake (Aly) Smith and Molly Smith, and one great grandchild, Silas Smith. Laurel is also survived by her sister, Doris Ferguson of Trenton and sisters-in-law Jeanette Wengert of Montezuma, Iowa, and Marjorie Berry of Chelsea, Michigan, and many nieces and nephews. She was preceded in death by her husband, Melvin, and her sisters, Colleen Gates and Guidona Brown Robar.

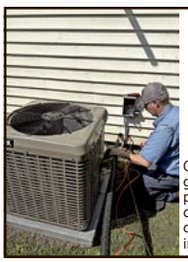

Funeral services will be held at the Galt Christian Church, on Saturday, October 24, at 11:00 a.m. with burial to follow at Berry Cemetery north of Galt. Visitation will take place one hour prior to the service at the church.

Memorial donations are suggested to Berry Cemetery or Galt Christian Church and may be made at Slater Funeral Home or at the Galt Christian Church.

Wolverines take down Trenton football

The Trenton Bulldogs suffered a 38-7 loss at the hands of the Maysville Wolverines in gridiron action Friday, Oct. 16. The Bulldogs have now taken back-to-back losses and stand at 2-6 on the season.

"Trenton has now lost four of their last five games on the road," reports MaxPreps. "... As for Maysville, their win ended a five-game drought at home dating back to last season and bumped them up to 2-6."

The Bulldogs will face Gallatin/Tri-County at 7 p.m. this Friday, Oct. 23.

Trenton Ends Softball Season With Loss to Putnam County

The Trenton Bulldogs softball team ended their season last week with a tough loss in districts to Putnam County. The Bulldogs lost 1-4, bringing their season record to 17-14, according to MaxPreps.

Emma Welch, who recently broke the school's stolen base record, pitched six innings with 8 strikeouts and allowing two hits and four runs.

At bat, Welch led the Bulldogs with a hit and a run in three at-bats. Morgan Smith also added one hit in her 3 at-bats.

Experts Discuss Steps To Take After Breast Cancer Diagnosis

Metro Creative

A breast cancer diagnosis can be jarring, and millions of women receive such news across the globe each year. BreastCancer.org estimates 316,950 women in the United States will be diagnosed with invasive breast cancer in 2025, as well as 59,080 new cases of ductal carcinoma in situ, a non-invasive form of the disease.

After learning they have breast cancer, individuals may not know what to do next. Certain steps may not take away the initial shock, but can help people prepare for what's ahead.

METRO CREATIVE

After learning they have breast cancer, individuals may not know what to do next. Certain steps may not take away the initial shock, but can help people prepare for what's ahead.

Gather information

The first step is to learn more about your diagnosis. This should include details about the type, stage and hormone receptor status of the breast cancer from your doctor. Now is the time to ask the doctor to clarify anything you do not understand. He or she also may begin to spell out a treatment plan.

Unless the cancer is very aggressive, you likely have time to seek a second opinion. Another specialist can confirm the diagnosis and offer a second opinion about a potential treatment plan. After all expert opinions are gathered, you also may want to learn more through reputable sources like the Mayo Clinic or the American Cancer Society before making any treatment decisions.

Share the news

Some people want to keep their cancer diagnosis a secret, but it can be helpful to let loved ones know early on. This will help you build a strong support system that can offer emotional support and additional assistance when needed. Treatment may leave you feeling weakened and ill, and you might need some helpers to lighten your load. A counselor or therapist also can help you navigate the emotions of a breast cancer diagnosis.

Accept help

It can be difficult for those who are independent to admit they need assistance. You can take the reins by making a list of tasks or responsibilities that you may need help with. This way when people ask what they can do, you'll have answers at the ready. Ideas include help with meal preparation, childcare, errands, transportation, or keeping you company during treatments.

Prioritize self-care

Breast cancer can take a lot out of a person. Trying to maintain some sense of normalcy can help. Consider gentle exercise, relaxation techniques and activities that bring a smile to your face. Remember to choose healthy foods and find ways to manage stress as much as possible. Be patient with yourself, as it can take time to adapt to a diagnosis and treatment.

Speak with your employer

Breast cancer can affect your ability to work. There likely will be appointments with doctors and consultations with your care team. Looping your employer in is a smart idea. Many supervisors will be supportive of your needs. You also may want to speak with human resources about any services that could be available to you, or how you can allocate personal time off for your treatment and care.

A breast cancer diagnosis can catch anyone off guard. Taking each step slowly and learning more can make the weeks ahead a little less apprehensive.

THANK YOU

The Grundy County Breast Cancer Support Group would like to say a huge thank you to Trenton Hy-Vee's Jim Deitchler and Amber Price for their donation of Pulled Pork, Buns & Chips & Trenton Coke's Chuck Jones for donating Bottled Water for our annual fundraiser on Friday, October 8th.

Thank you to Laurie Stevenson, Brenda Hooker, Cheryl Moore and Naomi Starkebaum for the delicious sugar cookies and to Dockery Chapel for loaning us the table and chairs.

Once again, we thought we had cooked enough pulled pork and baked beans for the event and we once again fell short. We had 128 to go orders to deliver to Trenton Businesses along with Trenton and Laredo Schools before we ever got started serving the rest of the community.

Thank you to our delivery drivers, gals and guys who served the meals and took care of the donations.

The turnout from Trenton and surrounding communities far exceeded last year's totals.

The women of Grundy County going through Breast Cancer are truly blessed by your generosity!

Local Eye Doctor Named Optometrist of Year For 2026

On Oct. 10, local Premier Eyecare Associates' Kevin Harris was awarded the 2026 Missouri Optometric Association Lee Ann Barrett Distinguished Legacy Award for Optometrist of the Year.

This award is given annually to a Missouri optometrist who embodies leadership, service, professional accomplishment, and clinical excellence.

Harris joined Premier Eyecare Associates in 2011 after completing his master's in healthcare administration, doctorate of optometry and a residency in ocular disease and low vision. He practices primary eye care in Trenton, Brookfield and Kirksville, but also maintains a specialty low-vision practice in Trenton.

"Harris has devoted years to serving not only his patients, but the profession of optometry in the state of Missouri, serving as North Optometric Society trustee, North Optometric Society president and president of the Missouri Optometric Association, where he was integral in forming relationships with legislators and improving rural patient access to eye care," reads a release about the award. "He also serves in several other local capacities, through his church, civic organizations, Rotary, the Wright Memorial Hospital Foundation, overseas mission work and numerous volunteer efforts. He is always finding a way to bless others."

PET of the Week

The mother dog and four puppies (three females and 1 male) were dumped to fend for themselves, and someone started feeding them, so they stayed. The puppies are approximately 10 weeks old and are very sweet. They are a mixed breed, as you can tell by their picture. The people who are caring for them are elderly, so they cannot keep them because they already have an adult dog. These puppies sometimes get under their feet (as puppies do) and are becoming a trip hazard. All of these dogs are looking for furever homes. They would make great farm dogs as they love being outside and playing. Please share this information so we can help this elderly couple find good homes for these dogs. Please get in touch with Affordable Vet Care, and we can arrange a meet-and-greet for you and your family.

College Club Offers Support, Resources To 1st-generation Students

Angela Heins
North Central Missouri College

Being the first person in your family to attend college is something worth celebrating. It can also mean learning a lot of things for the first time, sometimes without knowing there were things you were supposed to know.

For first-generation college students, the "invisible rules" of college can be difficult to navigate. What does a certain college term mean? When is an important deadline? Who should you talk to when you have a question? What are office hours, and are you actually supposed to go? Even something as simple as finding affordable textbooks may be something a student has to figure out on their own.

At NCMC, the First Gen Club was created to make that journey a little less overwhelming—and a lot less lonely.

First Gen Club provides support and community for students whose parent(s) have not attained a four-year college degree. The club gives students opportunities to connect with their peers, learn about academic and community resources, develop leadership skills, and build relationships with mentors and First Gen graduates who have already navigated college.

As the First Gen Club advisor, I see the value of that community firsthand. I was a first-generation college student myself, and I remember what it was like to be unaware of some of those unwritten expectations. I remember not understanding certain college terms or deadlines, not knowing that office hours were something I could actually use, and spending more money than necessary on textbooks because I didn't know about other options.

I also remember having one person in college who would check in on me simply because they wanted to know how I was doing. That experience has stayed with me, and it is something I want to provide for students today: someone in their corner.

First Gen Club is about more than being the first. It is about finding people you can talk to, having someone who can help, and finding a place where you belong. At NCMC, students come from a variety of backgrounds, including recent high school graduates from rural communities and non-traditional students. First Gen can provide a place to find community, even when students may not feel like they fit in anywhere else.

And, of course, we want to have fun, too! First Gen Club hosts monthly meetings and participates in activities such as NCMC's Trick-or-Treat event, movie nights, and a First Gen Day celebration on November 8th (observed this year on November 9th). These experiences give students opportunities to make friends, get involved, and build leadership skills they can carry with them to their next school, future careers, and beyond.

Michael Turner, First Gen Club Vice-President, described his experience this way: "First Gen Club is a great way for incoming students to find community, as well as find resources on their college journey. First Gen is my rock!"

SUBMITTED

Angela Heins is the assistant director of student support services at North Central Missouri College.

Being the first can mean breaking new ground for yourself and your family. But being first does not mean you have to figure everything out alone.

At NCMC, First Gen Club is here to remind students that they have people in their corner—and that their first-generation journey is something to be proud of.
